WRIT OF EPROR GRANTED IN MARY AREBYATHY'S CASE.

Hearing on Its Merits to Take Place in September-Writ Refused Solomon Marable-An Appeal to Be

FARMVILLE, VA., June 24.-(Special.)-Hon. George D. Wise and Hon. H. W. Flourney, of counsel for Mary Abernathy, the woman twice convicted of complicity in the murder of Mrs. Lucy Jane Pollard in Lunenburg last June, appeared before Judge S. F. Coleman at Cumberland Courthouse to-day to ask for a writ of error in their client's case

Judge Coleman had read the record of the case the evening before, and this morning when the time arrived for the argument of counsel to begin his Honor informed them that he did not care to hear the speeches, as he had determined to grant the writ of error.

The Judge did not, of course, state the particular ground on which he arrived at the decision, but said that from the read ing of the record be was convinced that there was sufficient reason for his action. The time for hearing the case upon its merits was then set for the fall term of Prince Edward Circuit Court, which be gins here the first day of September. BOTH ELATED.

Neither Judge Mann nor Mr. Southall was present to represent the Common-wealth, Mr. Watkins, however, was in court. Messrs. Wise and Flournoy were driven from Cumberland Courthouse to this place this afternoon to catch the Richmond train, and they were both greatly elated over the bright prospects for Mary Abernathy's final acquittal. Indeed, neither Captain Vfase nor Judge Flournoy believes that the prisoner's case will ever be heard by another jury. The decision of Judge Coleman does not meet with disfavor from the people of Farmville, who are acquainted with the case. The officers of Prince Edward Court expected the granting of the writ of error, and consequently were not the least disdriven from Cumberland Courthouse t

A motion was made before Judge Cole-man by Messrs. W. C. Franklin and Wil-liam Lancaster, counsel for Solomon Marable, for a writ of error in his case. It was argued at length by these gentle-men, with the result that their motion was promptly overruled. Marable is under sentence of death for the murder of Mrs. Pollard, his execution to occur on the 3d day of July. The main ground which counsel based their motion on was the admission of Captain Frank Cunningham's testimony regarding a confession made to him by Marable while the mili-tary were protecting the prisoners at Lunenburg Courthouse from mob vio-

ble in Lynchburg jall the other day the condemned man seemed to more thoroughly realize his awful situation than ever before.

Mr. Franklin told Solomon that there was no hope to be extended to him; that all he could do for him as a lawyer had been done, and told him he would like for him to make a true statement regarding the killing of Mrs. Pollard. Solomon replied that there was but one true answer, and that was that he held Mrs. Pollard's hands while a white man killed her. hands while a white man killed her,

Death of This Well-Known Charlottesville Banker.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA., June 24.— (Special.)—B. C. Flannagan, cashler of the People's National Bank, died this morn-ing at the age of 80 years. More than sixty People's National Bank, died this inorthing at the age of 80 years. More than sixty years ago he came to Charlottesville, where he has since resided. He engaged in mercantile pursuits, being a member of the firm of Flannagan, Abell & Co., the house doing a large business in drygoods and ineidentally filling to some extent the place of a bank. He and the late Slaughter W. Ficklin established a savings bank and bank of issue. This ploneer bank was succeeded by the Monticello Bank, in which the late D. J. Hartsook was interested, and other banks in the country came into existence through the agency of these gentlemen. The Monticello Bank closed its carsor with the ending of the war, Mr. Flannagan then founded the Charlottesville Bank, and became interested in the Virginia Loan and Trust Company, which was succeeded by the Citizens' Bank. The Charlottesville Bank and the Charlottesville Bank were consolidated, and thereafter known as the Charlottesville National Bank, which talled in 1875. Later in that year Mr. Flannagan was instrumental in organizing the People's Bank as a State bank, and in 181 made it a national bank. He was its cashier at the time of his death.

for elleged malicious libel, was concluded in the Law and Equity Court last night, having been in progress since Monday morning last. The jury was out only a short while, returning a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $6.000 damages. It was a hotly contested suit from the beginning to the end. The plaintiff was represented by Messrs Allan & Allan and A. B. Dickinson, while Mr. M. M. Gilliam was counsel for the defendants.

The litigation grew out of a letter written to the Richmond and Danville Railway Company (now the Southern) by these companies, in which it was claimed that the character of the plaintiff had been assalled. In June, 1884, permission was given to Field, who was the depot agent and operator of the Danville railway, to start a store at Midlothian. The defendant companies also had a supply store at that point, and it was alleged that in letter written by them to the railroad authorities Field was charged with neglect of duty, a disorganization of the labor forces, and it also set forth that this resulted in the bringing of petty suits, instituted for spite on Field's part. The railway company to go his security when he left under the existing circumstances.

The agent then filed his bill in the Law and Equity Court, and the result was what is given above. Counsel for the defendants offered a motion to set aside the verdict as contrary to the law and the verdence in the case, on the ground that the damages awarded were excessive, o misinstructions to the jury, &c. Judgo Minor continued the motion, and it will probably be argued later.

Messrs John T. Goddin, H. Seldon Taylor & Son, and N. W. Bowe, real estate agents of this city, offered for sale at public auction yesterday the St. Claire Hotel property and the Ford's Opera-House property, corner Eighth and Broad streets, but in both instances the property was taken in by the commissioners. The sale of the St. Claire Hotel included that of the Virginia House, and it took three quarters of an hour to cry the price up to £5.000, at which figure the property was taken in and the sale declared off.

At 1 o'clock the Ford's Opera-House property was put up. The first bid received was $10.000, and the second added $500 to this amount. The sale was here declared off by the commissioners. The feature of this offer was the fact that Colonel Euker, who made the first bid, did so with the intention of erecting a theatre on the site should the property be knocked down to him.
